Along with many of you, I am using the summer Bible reading plan to guide my daily Bible reading for the next 2 months. In my reading today I came across this passage...

Romans 9:14-18

What shall we say then? Is there injustice on God's part? By no means! For he says to Moses, "I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion." So then it depends not on human will or exertion, but on God, who has mercy. For the Scripture says to Pharaoh, "For this very purpose I have raised you up, that I might show my power in you, and that my name might be proclaimed in all the earth." So then he has mercy on whomever he wills, and he hardens whomever he wills.

Wow! That's pretty blunt, isn't it? You may think this is a tough passage. God tells us I'm going to do with my creation what I need to do. It's not an issue of fairness or justice. I will show mercy upon those whom I choose to show mercy. Praise God He has chosen to show His mercy to us. We are not owed it. We did not earn it. In His mercy He shows us compassion. He goes on to say in verses 19-21...

"You will say to me then, "Why does he still find fault? For who can resist his will?" But who are you, O man, to answer back to God? Will what is molded say to its molder, "Why have you made me like this?" Has the potter no right over the clay, to make out of the same lump one vessel for honorable use and another for dishonorable use?"

I feel like the implied question we have to deal with here is "do you trust me?" You are the clay. He is the Potter. Do you trust Him? He has given you the breath of life, created you as you are and placed you where you are. He has shown you unending mercy and grace offering you the crown of life. What more do you need to trust the God of the universe who looks down upon beings such as us and chooses to love?

Justin

The logo for 'The Vineyard' features the word 'The' in a green cursive font above the word 'VINEYARD' in a bold, purple, sans-serif font. The letter 'V' is green and has a vine-like texture. Below the text is a green vine with roots extending downwards.

Good morning from Camp Sooner. We're in the middle of another great week of camp, enjoying the energy (and sometimes awkwardness) of junior high students. Last week was the high schoolers turn and I believe it was the best week of camp I've been a part of. Many other of our youth ministers and sponsors agree with me.

But before I tell you about our week let me give a Great Big Thank You to everyone who had anything to do with the meals that Parkview provided during our high school and junior high camps. If you prepared food, donated food, cooked food, brought food to the camp, served food or anything else thank you so much. The great food is truly a blessing for the students. The provision of the meal is a great financial blessing for Camp Sooner. Your service offers the kitchen staff a much need breather. And your presence with us as we worship through music and the word of God is a blessing. A special thanks goes out to the Tarbox and Owens families.

The first great news I want to share with you about camp is one of our students who has been with us for several years has given her life to the Lord. Tyana Rawson was baptized late Thursday evening. What an awesome way to end a great week, praising God and celebrating the new life of person we love dearly.

One of the things that really struck me about camp is the importance of allowing the spirit to lead. I feel ok about making this next statement because I was one of four men who planned the week, but nothing we did turned out to be exceptional. Our games were good, but we've had better. The lessons were good, but other years have been better. Our preacher was good but you all get better preaching every Sunday morning. Everything was good, but nothing was exceptional. But it was still the most impactful week of camp. Why? Because as sponsors, leaders, ministers, and students we were all willing to get out of our comfort zone, break free of doing what we always do, and allow the Spirit to move. And we followed. The power of God in our lives is not dependent on our planning and preparation. We experience it to the fullest when we humble ourselves and submit to what he was planned and prepared for us.

Joseph
